Together... we can eliminate gender-based violence.
Together... health workers can work with survivors to help them stay safe and connect them to other services they may need.
Together... health workers can work with survivors to ask the right questions, listen with compassion and reassure them that violence is not their fault.
Together... health workers can work with survivors to help them stay safe and connect them to other services they may need.
Together... health workers can work with other stakeholders to raise awareness of the harmful consequences of gender-based violence and how to prevent it.

#HumanTogether
Together... health workers can strengthen their capability to respond better to survivors’ needs.
Together...
the health sector can work with women’s affairs, social welfare, justice and police to provide survivors with access to essential services.
Together... policy-makers can foster laws and policies to achieve gender equality and eliminate gender-based violence.
Together... policy-makers can work with communities to increase women’s access to education and employment.

#HumanTogether
Together, communities can work with men and boys to challenge harmful masculinities.
Together... policy-makers can work with communities to prevent violence against children.
Together...

communities can mobilize to challenge cultural attitudes that make gender-based violence acceptable.

#HumanTogether

HUMAN TOGETHER
Stand Together Against Gender-Based Violence

World Health Organization
Western Pacific Region
Together... we can eliminate gender-based violence.

#HumanTogether